PK

In PK's first ever public relations campaign, A.wordsmith developed narratives that became central to PK's media relations, thought leadership, content development, and more.

Client Description

PK (formerly ProKarma) is an experience engineering firm with more than 3,500 employees in the United States, India, Mexico and Argentina. It designs and engineers experiences that enable the world's best-known retail, health care and tech/media/telecom companies to connect with their customers. A.wordsmith has partnered with PK since January 2011 to provide content development, design and messaging services.

Project Description

In 2019, PK acquired five companies and embraced a new vigor for marketing and PR as it adds new thought leaders and targets substantial company growth. To help meet the company's revenue goals, PK tasked A.wordsmith with launching its first-ever strategic public relations campaign in February 2019. The goal was to increase awareness of the firm's unique capacity to create value through digital engineering and customer experiences and to bring its expanded pool of thought leaders under one umbrella. Partnering closely with PK's internal marketing team, A.wordsmith worked with 16 of the firm's executives, technology service line leaders and engineers to develop narratives that became central to media relations, thought leadership, content development, email campaigns, events, social media and more.
